Lift curbs on tobacco and drugs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Acting to define food under Phase 3 wage-price guidelines, the Cost of Living Council has exempted alcoholic beverages, tobacco and drugs from mandatory controls.

The council said Friday that any items "produced or manufactured for human ingestion, but not including alcoholic beverages, tobacco products or drugs," are subject to mandatory controls.

Mandatory controls mean a firm cannot raise prices without justifying them. Nor can it exceed a profit margin or percentage markup set by the council.

The food, construction and health industries remained under mandatory wage-price controls when Phase 3 was put into effect Jan. 11, while the remainder of the economy went under voluntary restraints.

Firms covered by mandatory controls, the council said further, are those deriving at least 20 per cent or $50 million of their annual revenues from the sale of food. Large restaurants, caterers and vending-machine operators are subject to the mandatory controls, the council said.

Products eaten by both humans and beasts will be exempt from mandatory controls until they "enter into a processing stage" where they are intended for strict human ingestion, the council said.

The new regulations don't apply to raw farm products until after the first sale, and wholesalers are still permitted to pass along any increases in those products when they sell such items.

The controls continue to set a ceiling on price increases based on a firm's profit margin before controls were instituted.

Officials said alcoholic beverages were exempted because they are not included in the federal food price index that is used to calculate the cost of living and "liquor prices have not been a problem in Phase 2."

Under the council's definition, any item purchased to put in a drink will be subject to mandatory controls—if the ice company is big enough—and while the liquor won't be, the mixer will.

Corn, wheat and soybeans will be covered if they are to be made into breakfast cereal, cooking oil or other products for human consumption but not if they are sold as livestock feed.

All three flatly refused to permit newspaper photographers to snap their pictures at a presentation here.

"You would think," commented Harry Kaplan, executive director of the Pennsylvania lottery bureau, "that anyone getting a nice check in return for a very small investment would be jumping for joy. But these people don't appear particularly joyful. It may be that they're apprehensive about how relatives and friends will react to their good fortune."

The three showed up at noon Friday to collect checks of between $10,000 and $15,000.

"If my picture appears in the paper, I've got a half-dozen relatives who will be around tomorrow morning trying to bleed me," said Mrs. Frankie Smith, of Philadelphia, a 76-year-old widow, who won $15,000 in the Lucky Seven Lottery Dec. 22.

Another $15,000 winner, from the Dec. 17 Lucky Seven, was Philadelphia policeman Robert E. Cooke, 34.

"My house was burglarized a month ago," Cooke said. "I might get ripped off again if my picture appeared in the paper."

The other winner, Francis W. O'Shaughnessy, 43, of Philadelphia, won $10,000 in the $1 million lottery Jan. 4.

"I'm a postman," he said. "That's all I'm going to say about myself."

A friend accompanying O'Shaughnessy spoke up: "He's a bachelor."

"You shouldn't have said that," the postman admonished the other man. "Let's get out of here."

Dying war claims 3rd American

SAIGON (AP) — Communist forces stormed into the major city of Tay Ninh and its Cao Dai temple today and attacked smaller towns across South Vietnam in what U.S. officials said was a grab for land before the cease-fire. It has been widely presumed by allied officials that the Viet Cong would like to claim Tay Ninh City, a provincial capital 55 miles northwest of Saigon, as a political base.

They believe it is important to the Communists because the city is near Viet Cong and North Vietnamese military bases and supply depots along the Cambodian border.

The South Vietnamese military command said the Communist troops had been driven out of several hamlets around Tay Ninh. But they acknowledged enemy troops still held two edges of the city.

U.S. officials said the attacks might prove of some success to the Communists in giving them control in new areas before the cease-fire goes into effect at 8 a.m. Sunday — 7 p.m. EST today.

One U.S. soldier who watched a buddy die in a predawn rocket attack on Da Nang Air Base said: "The only irony of it is that a good friend of mine from the same hometown as I'm from was killed this morning. He was supposed to start initial out-processing this morning to leave. He just got killed."

He was the third American serviceman to die since the cease-fire was announced Wednesday. A Marine security guard was killed in a rocket attack on the Bien Hoa Air Base before dawn Friday, and an observer was killed later the same day when his helicopter crashed 100 miles east of Saigon. Thirty-one American servicemen and civilian advisers and technicians have been wounded since Wednesday.

The Saigon command reported 160 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong attacks across South Vietnam during the 24 hours ending at 6 a.m. today, the highest number in nearly a year. About two-thirds of the attacks were by rockets and mortars, and it was the third successive day that enemy attacks topped 100.

The Saigon command claimed 533 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops killed. South Vietnamese reported their losses were at least 70 men killed and 363 wounded. Still fragmentary reports listed at least 10 civilians killed, 44 wounded and more than 30 homes destroyed.

North Vietnamese troops also fought their way into Trang Bom Village, about 20 miles northeast of Saigon on Highway 1; and fighting was reported near the district town of Trang Bang, along Highway 1 about 30 miles to the northwest.

Press, public to be kept from returning POWs

TRAVIS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — Americans who have waited to see Vietnam prisoners of war return to their home soil may not see much when it actually happens.

Military officials who have been preparing "Operation Homecoming" for months said Friday they plan to keep the public, newsmen and photographers at a distance from the freed war prisoners who will be brought here.

In route from Vietnam to one of 31 military hospitals near their homes, the POWs will stop at this sprawling air base 50 miles northeast of San Francisco for varying lengths of time. The first are expected within two weeks.

Newsmen were shown Friday how the POWs will be taken from the giant C141 medical evacuation jets that will bring them home from Communist captivity.

Bad weather in Midwest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Winter roared back into the mid-continent today, bringing with it strong winds and heavy snows, while rain soaked the East and West coasts.

Only the Gulf Coast and portions of the Southwest, including Texas, New Mexico and Arizona and stretching into California, Nevada and Idaho, had fair skies.

A combination of cold fronts and storm systems over the center of the nation brought back the cold air and snow. Up to 3 inches of snow was reported at Akron, Colo. and Sydney, Neb. and 2 inches blanketed the ground at Holloway, Kan.

Many of the same sections were warmed by record January mildness earlier this week.

Rain doused the Pacific Northwest and showers extended from the Ohio Valley to the Atlantic Coast.

Heavy fog socked in an area from southern Lake Superior to New England. Freezing drizzle also was hampering driving in the southern Lake Superior area.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 76 at Key West, Fla. to 1 at Butte, Mont.

Oleo heir kills self

WINGSTON, N.Y. (AP) — Three years after setting off a dollar fever with a promise to give away his fortune first-come, first-served — oleomargarine heir Michael James Brody Jr., 24, has shot himself to death.

His promise in 1970, when he was 21, lured hundreds of persons to a rented mansion in Scarsdale, N.Y., where Brody wrote thousands of dollars in checks to people he didn't know. The checks bounced.

Brody said the idea came to him while "tripped out on drugs."

Ceremony takes just 18 minutes

PARIS (AP) — Agreements on ending the fighting in Vietnam and calling for the withdrawal of all U.S. forces were signed today in two sessions in the ballroom of an old hotel near the Arc de Triomphe.

In the first session this morning, the United States, South Vietnam, North Vietnam and the Viet Cong signed the overall agreement that for the United States means the end of the longest war in its history and a conflict paid for in the lives of nearly 460 men and billions of dollars.

This signing took 18 minutes and ended with champagne toasts. But outside, demonstrators were waving Viet Cong and North Vietnamese flags and boozed the Americans and the South Vietnamese.

In the second signing session, Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Foreign Minister Nguyen Du Trinh of North Vietnam signed a separate group of documents and this officially brought an end to the diplomatic efforts for peace in Vietnam that began in 1968.

The main agreement signed by all four parties calls for the end of the fighting in Vietnam at midnight Greenwich Mean Time—or 7 p.m. EST.

As the U.S. and South Vietnamese delegations left, the crowd across the street boozed and jeered, then burst into the "International" as the Viet Cong foreign minister, Mrs. Binh, came into view.

The South Vietnamese delegation announced later that it had expressed "its deep surprise" to the French government for permitting the demonstration to take place near the scene of the signing.

About 300 French and Vietnamese, waving a forest of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong flags, stood behind police barriers opposite the entrance to the conference center.

Signed at the first ceremony were three protocols, or annexes, and the main agreement entitled: "Agreement on Ending the War and Restoring Peace in Vietnam."

The protocols cover the release of prisoners, the operation of the four-nation control commission of Canada, Indonesia, Poland and Hungary and the operation of the temporary Joint Military Commission to be set up by the four parties to the agreements.

The documents set aside for Rogers and Trinh were three protocols plus a fourth covering U.S. removal of American mines dropped in North Vietnamese waters.

The only difference in the documents in the morning and afternoon session is in the preamble and the designation of the signatories.

The agreement signed by all four parties refers only to "the parties participating in the Paris conference on Vietnam."

The U.S.-North Vietnamese documents formally designate the four parties by name, including the Republic of Vietnam, meaning South Vietnam, and the provisional revolutionary government, meaning the Viet Cong.

This complex procedure was a compromise avoiding any mutual recognition by the two rival South Vietnamese governments.

The signing ends for the United States a war that saw its first soldier killed in action in 1961. Since then 45,931 Americans have died in action and 303,605 have been wounded.

Violence in Ireland

LONDONDERRY, Northern Ireland (AP) — Three militiamen were wounded, none seriously, by a Soviet-made rocket fired at them early today in County Armagh, near the border with the Irish Republic, authorities reported.

The attack followed Friday's violence during which a British soldier was shot in the back.

National period of prayer proclaimed by President

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — Like countless Americans across the nation, President Nixon and his family will say prayers of thanksgiving today as the shooting ends in this country's longest war.

Nixon; his wife, Pat, and daughter Julie Nixon Eisenhower plan to attend a special church service at 7 p.m. EST at the Key Biscayne Presbyterian Church near the Florida White House, press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said.

Nixon flew to Florida from Washington on Friday shortly after he signed a proclamation designating that hour for prayer and thanksgiving. It coincides with the hour a cease-fire is to take place in Vietnam.

The President issued the proclamation after Congress requested one be made.

In it, he said in part:

"A long and trying ordeal for America has ended. Our nation has achieved its goal for peace with honor in Vietnam."

"As a people with a deep and abiding faith, we know that no great work can be accomplished without the aid and inspiration of almighty God. No time can be more fitting for grateful prayer and meditation than the opening moment of the peace we have achieved with His help."

"Now, therefore, I ... do hereby designate 7 p.m. Eastern Standard Time ... as a national moment of prayer and thanksgiving and the 24-hour period beginning then as a national day of prayer and thanksgiving...."

The Rev. John Huffman, who is pastor of the Key Biscayne church Nixon often attends and who has preached for Nixon at the White House, will lead the prayers for the First Family.

When the presidential party landed at nearby Homestead Air Force Base Friday afternoon, Nixon was greeted by a local high school band and several hundred well-wishers, including families of prisoners of war and soldiers missing in action.

Nixon, his wife and daughter shook hands with the crowd, kept behind a security fence, for 18 minutes before departing for their Key Biscayne compound by helicopter.

As he greeted the half-dozen POW and MIA families, he told them: "You're the bravest people I know."

To one POW wife Nixon said, "Sorry we didn't make it by Christmas."

High-cost financial help available to Ohio farmers

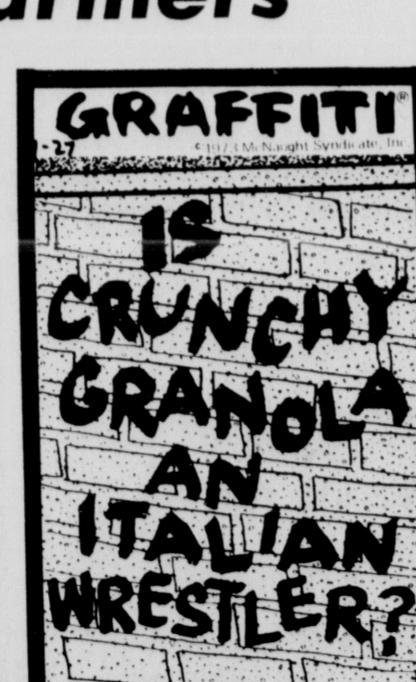

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's farmers appear to be in line for financial aid to help them out of their weather-caused problems. But it may not really mean a great deal. State Agriculture Director Eugene Abercrombie called it "a drop in the bucket."

The head of the Farmers Home Administration officer here, Ralph Stacey, said the FHA has about $2 million available for loans to farmers who are unable to get money elsewhere through its Operating Loan Program.

Stacy said the money, loaned at a rate of 5.87 per cent could be used to help farmers get started on next year's crops. The emergency loans to farmers, cut off last month by the federal government, would have cost the borrowers one per cent. Stacy said it appeared to him there wouldn't be any further emergency loans, at least until the end of the current fiscal year.

A spokesman for the attorney general said Brown is ready to approve the move. He also said the USDA is expected to act on the matter next week.

Abercrombie said the state department of agriculture's $1.5 million would guarantee between $30 and $50 million in commercial loans. He said this compares with an estimated $200 million in needs.

Revision of beef grading opposed by breeds council

"American consumers will be short changed if a proposed revision of the USDA beef grading standards is enacted," Lloyd D. Miller, new president of the U. S. Beef Breeds Council, said after a recent meeting of the group.

Speaking for the Council's members, which represents the nine major beef breed registry associations with more than 128,000 members nationally, Miller said the proposal advanced by three meat packing associations would lower the minimum quality standards in each of the three most used and trusted USDA grades. The changes, now under consideration by the USDA, at the request of the three packer groups, would lower the marbling requirements for USDA Good, Choice and Prime grades for all carcasses from cattle over a year of age.

At their recent annual meeting in Dallas, Texas, members of the U. S. Beef Breeds Council voted unanimously to oppose any grading changes which, it contended would "short change" the consumers, and cause them to lose confidence in the quality of American beef, particularly beef graded USDA Choice.

After hearing an explanation of proposed grade changes by John Pierce, director of the USDA's Livestock Division, the Council members concluded that there is not enough evidence to justify any grade changes at this time. The members also concluded that further lowering of marbling requirements could turn the USDA beef grading program into virtually a one-grade service.

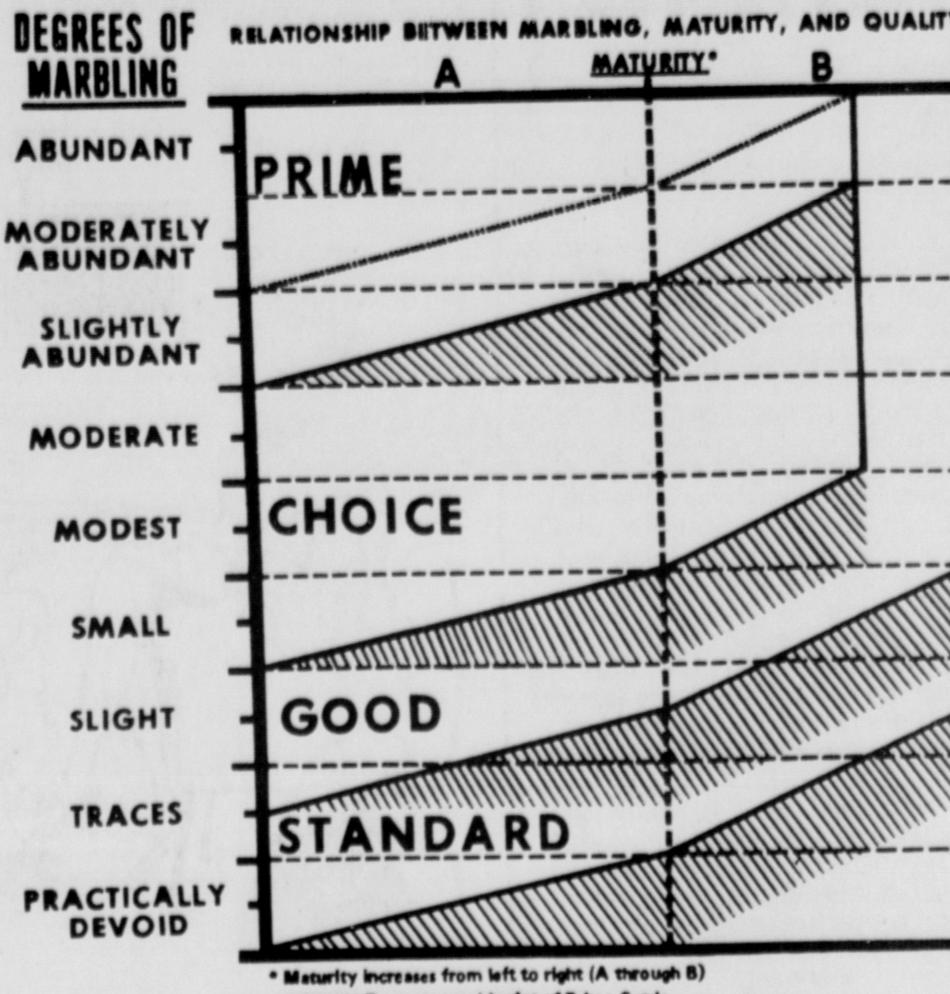

The council said the change would allow the top one-thirds of all carcasses that currently are graded USDA Good, to qualify for USDA Choice stamp. By the same token the top one-third or more of all carcasses graded USDA Standard today would be eligible to be rolled USDA Good. During the first 19 weeks of the current USDA fiscal year some 81 per cent of all cattle graded received the USDA Choice label while only 13 per cent graded USDA Good and 5 per cent Prime. By including more than one-third of the current Good grade carcasses in the USDA Choice grade the proposed grading change would make at least 86 per cent of all graded beef USDA Choice. For all practical purposes this would mean a one-grade system, as exists in lamb grading today, the council pointed out.

Under the present USDA grading standards a carcass with physiological age of nine months requires at least a "small-minus" amount of marbling to qualify for USDA Choice. A carcass of about 16 months of age must have marbling that at least falls into the middle of the "small" classification and cattle with a physiological age of around 24 months of age needs nearly a "modest" amount of marbling to be rolled USDA Choice. The change proposed by the meat packers and supported by some cattle feeding groups requires that all carcasses in the "A" maturity classification (about 9 months to 29 months of age) would need only "small-minus" marbling to qualify for Choice, the amount that nine month old animals are required to have today. (See enclosed graph).

Persons or organizations who have an opinion on proposed grading changes were advised to express their opinion in writing to John Pierce, director, Livestock Division, USDA, Washington, D. C.

Member organizations of the U. S. Beef Breeds Council are: American Angus Association, American Brahman Breeders Association, American Hereford Association, American International Charolais Association, American Polled Hereford Association, American Shorthorn Association, International Brangus Breeders Association, Red Angus Association of America, and Santa Gertrudis Breeders International.

HOW MUCH THE MARBLING requirements would be lowered for USDA graded beef under a proposal advanced by the three large meat packer organizations is shown in the shaded areas of this graph supplied by the United States Department of Agriculture. The dark lines are the current dividing lines between the various grades. For example, the amount of marbling for a 9-month-old animal to get into the Choice grade is at the bottom of the "Small" amount. At the division between "A" and "B" maturity, (dotted line running vertically in center of graph) which represents about 29 months of age, a carcass must have "modest" marbling. A carcass of about 16 to 18 months of age now must exhibit marbling in the middle of the "Small" range to qualify for the USDA Choice grade. If the proposed grading change is enacted any animal in the "A" maturity range (from 9 to 29 months of age) would need only "small minus" marbling to grade USDA choice, about half a degree less than most carcasses must have today.

Opinion And Comment

Lyndon Baines Johnson

The shockingly sudden death of President Lyndon Baines Johnson was most untimely, and not in any mere chronological sense. It was untimely because of what this extraordinary man might yet have contributed to American life.

Unlike some other former presidents who have lived to an advanced age (in this century Hoover, Eisenhower and Truman come notably to mind), Johnson had not yet reached his 65th birthday. Reticent in marked degree since his departure from the White House, embittered by what he regarded as widespread misunderstanding of his actions and motives while president, he had reportedly gained a new serenity in recent months. One may reasonably speculate that in years to come he might from time to time have offered wise counsel drawn from his long experience in the legislative and executive branches of the government.

The European Security Conference

For some years the Soviets have been pressing for a European Security Conference. In the early stages the project was stalled because Moscow thought the United States did not qualify as "European," and our Western European allies did not feel like going into the bear pit without their American ally. That was smoothed over, and now representatives of all European and NATO powers have been meeting in Helsinki to work out an agenda. Once the agenda is agreed upon, the conference itself will be convened.

On the surface the Soviets have been quite mollifying. For example, they have agreed with the United States that military issues be reserved for separate treatment — at another conference on Mutual and Balanced

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: WHEN YOU GET TOO BIG A MAJORITY, YOU'RE IMMEDIATELY IN TROUBLE.—SAM RAYBURN

(© 1973 King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Noting on that occasion that ours is "the richest and most powerful country which ever occupied this globe," he disavowed any wish "to be the president who built empires, or sought grandeur, or extended dominion." Rather, he said, he wanted to be the president who "educated young children to the wonders of their world," who "helped to feed the hungry," who "helped the poor to find their own way and who protected the right of every citizen to vote in every election," who "helped to end hatred among the people of all races and all regions and all parties." And lastly he said he wanted to be the president "who helped to end war among the brothers of the earth."

One of President Johnson's greatest triumphs was the enactment of the Voting Rights Act he had proposed. Some of the words he uttered in a speech before Congress urging passage of such legislation serve as well as anything to express his compassionate, humanely oriented presidential philosophy.

It was the great tragedy of Johnson's years in the White House that he so conspicuously failed in this culminating desire. Yet in other areas of concern set before Congress in that address he was as conspicuously successful.

Force Reductions scheduled for Vienna. Since military relationships would appear to be the core of any European Security pact, one wonders what there is left to discuss at Helsinki.

IN FACT this European Security Conference could be a spectacular ideological trap and one hopes that the American and allied delegates are on the alert. This is said with some empirical misgivings: at the recent UNESCO Conference for American delegate on the resolutions committee of the subcommittee on communications voted FOR a Soviet sponsored resolution calling for censorship. When the proposal hit the floor of the full subcommittee, we were in the embarrassing position of repudiating our own prior stance. In short, though we came out in the right place, we looked like bumbling amateurs.

Thus the first question to be asked is: What do the Soviets and their allies want? Romania has muddied up the waters a bit by suggesting that everybody agree not to use force against everybody else — a thinly disguised way of denouncing the Brezhnev Doctrine, which stated that armed intervention in Czechoslovakia (and by implication any other "socialist" state) was legitimate to protect the people from "imperialism." However, that will probably die by the wayside; it has all the earmarks of a bargaining chip which the Romanians will sacrifice for, say, a new steel mill.

What we can anticipate is a Soviet effort to legitimize the status quo in Europe. If we take a close look at the status quo in Europe, we find that this means the maintenance of Communist dictatorships on one hand, and the retention of the Community right to achieve power on our side of the hill. In other words, what is theirs is theirs — what is ours is up for grabs.

This is hardly a symmetrical arrangement. Symmetry would require that in exchange for the validation of Communist dictatorship, the Western powers obtain the right to suppress the Communists, and other opponents. In short, Franco's Spain or the Greek junta would provide the models for France and Italy.

OBVIOUSLY no democrat would suggest that we go to the Security Conference in search of such an ideological bargain. What then, assuming we do eventually reach the conference stage, should be our opening bid? The London Economist suggested some time ago that, for openers, we should demand full freedom of movement between East and West. This is an excellent proposal and our delegates should fight day and night to get it on the agenda.

Furthermore, we could do a lot worse than to introduce the Romanian proposal on our own initiative. (After all, we do not claim the right to intervene in, say, France to forestall a Communist electoral victory). And there are undoubtedly other measures we could propose. But what is crucial is that we realize we are confronted by experts in political warfare who plan to squeeze every propaganda advantage to their maximum advantage. Please, Mr. President, send in the first team.

Calling all cars - but with what?

MARTINSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — The Martinsville police and the Morgan County Sheriff's Department found their police radios weren't much good in relaying the information on a recent burglary.

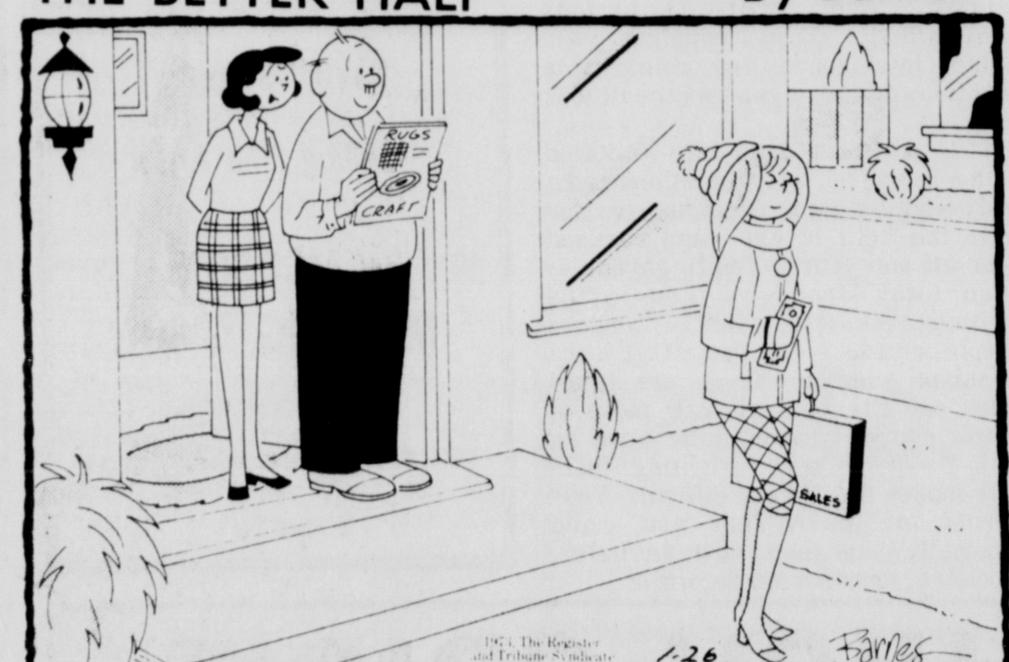

Someone stole their transmitter from a radio building in the city park. It was valued at more than $2,000 and weighed more than 150 pounds.

Officers borrowed a transmitter from nearby Greene County to get back on the air.

Ship hit by a whale

DURBAN, South Africa (AP) — The 608-ton Durban-based whaler Edwin Cook was almost sunk by one of its own harpoons. The vessel was holed when a harpoon protruding from a sperm whale it had shot ripped through the hull when a wave pushed the dead mammal against the ship.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Have problems sent to Dear Abby changed?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR READERS: I am frequently asked, "Has your mail changed much over the years since you've become Dear Abby?"

Yes. And one of the greatest changes is the increasing number of letters I receive asking, "Shall I put my elderly parents in a nursing home?"

Recently, I read an impressive editorial in a medical bulletin concerning that problem. It was written by Dr. Graham Gilmer, Jr., an Orange Cal., physician. With his permission (and my minor editing,) I want to share it with you.

(From the diary of a woman we shall call Jane)

July 5, 1972

DEAR DIARY: Today, my 80-year-old father, Henry, came to live with us. Not that it's such a big deal, it's only that I should have known it wouldn't work out. When Mother died suddenly two years ago, Dad insisted that he could live alone in the home he and mother had built for their retirement. He seemed to be managing nicely until one day I found him sick in bed with the flu, alone with nothing to eat.

My husband agreed that we should build an apartment for Dad over our garage, adjoining our house. That way we could look after Dad and he would have a little place of his own.

July 15, 1972

DEAR DIARY: I don't know how much of this I can take! Dad comes over here at least 40 times a day asking me what day it is, and when is Mother coming home? Today he put his arm around me and called me "Mildred," thinking I was my own mother.

He babbles constantly and sometimes he makes no sense at all. He wets his pants and even messes in his bed and his trousers. What a chore!

Why didn't I put him in a nursing home? It would have made life so much easier for us. Meanwhile, my brothers and sisters keep telling me what a "saint" I am, but they don't offer to take him off my hands. I have my own life to live and Dad is 80. Dear God, help me!

July 24, 1972

DEAR DIARY: I am so ashamed, I can hardly write this. Today I unpacked a trunk Dad stored in my attic after Mother died. Among the things Mother had saved was a packet of letters Dad had written to her over 50 years ago when Mother left Daddy and me to return to her hometown to help him care for his wife.

Devotedly, Henry

July 26, 1972

DEAR DIARY: I have a confession to make. Shakespeare's "Cycle of Life" was right. "From the cradle to the grave." How could I have missed the fact that the diaper of the infant is a prelude to the diaper of senility?

Until I found Dad's letters to Mother, I regretted not having put Dad in a nursing home. Not that that's so bad, but what he really needs more than anything else is a family's love and care. It's inconvenient, and extra work, but now it's my turn to repay him at the end of his life for what he did for me at the beginning of mine.

Someday, he may yet best fit into some nursing home, and when (and if) that day comes, I will consider his own best interest. Until then, his letters to Mother will haunt my innermost soul.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Saturday, Jan. 27, the 27th day of 1973. There are 338 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1880, Thomas A. Edison received a patent for his electric incandescent light.

On this date:

In 1756, composer Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart was born in Salzburg, Austria.

In 1808, the National Geographic Society was founded in Washington, D.C.

In 1943, U.S. bombers staged the first all-American air raid against Germany in World War II, striking Wilhelmshaven.

In 1944, the Russian city of Leningrad officially celebrated liberation from the Nazis.

In 1964, France recognized Communist China.

In 1967, U.S. astronauts Virgil Grissom, Edward White and Roger Chaffee died in a flash fire in their space capsule at Cape Kennedy.

Ten years ago: Washington said Britain would have to share in the development costs of any advanced Polaris missiles it might buy from the U.S.

Five years ago: In South Vietnam, 3,500 American cavalrymen were rushed in to help back up Marines threatened by an enemy offensive at Khe Sahn.

One year ago: Maurice H. Stans resigned as secretary of Commerce to become the chief fund-raiser for the Nixon reelection campaign.

Today's birthdays: Band leader Skitch Henderson is 55 years old. Vice Adm. Hyman G. Rickover is 73.

Thought for today: Fame is the perfume of heroic deeds—Socrates, Greek philosopher about 470 to 399 B.C.

When the giants crash

News that the crash of a chartered jetliner at Kano, Nigeria, apparently took 180 lives was disquieting enough in itself. If that figure turns out to be correct the accident sets a new record for loss of life in aircraft accidents.

Even more disquieting was this summation in an Associated Press account of the tragedy at Kano airport: "The crash here was the 11th in little over a year in which 100 or more persons were killed in various parts of the world." That accentuates the rising toll being taken as larger and larger aircraft operate on commercial scheduled or chartered flights.

The arithmetic of this phenomenon is simple: the bigger the plane, the greater the potential number of victims in a crash. Some operational aircraft now have places for more than 300 passengers (with capacity for more if need be), and others even larger are anticipated. Those responsible for airlines safety will no doubt not welcome further challenges to do everything possible to assure safe operation of such air giants. Such challenges must continue to be issued, all the same. Air traffic control systems, not only abroad but here at home, still fall short of what they might be.

Among Latin American republics, only Brazil and Argentina are larger than Mexico.

WPAFB set to receive returnees

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Ward 1 North at the Wright Patterson Air Force Base hospital near here will be the receiving center for returning prisoners of war from a surrounding eight-state area.

Most of the returnees will be members of the Air Force.

The ward has been set up to accommodate 38 men in single rooms with desks, chairs and television sets.

The men are to receive needed medical treatment and will be allowed to catch up on what has been going on in the outside world while they were held prisoners.

Air Force spokesmen said the families of the prisoners will be brought to the base at government expense if they desire and that reunions will take place in privacy shortly after the men arrive.

Free housing is being set aside on the base for the families should they choose to remain.

Lt. Col. Nick Apple said there is a possibility a returnee may not wish to meet with his family. "It's up to him," Apple said. The men will be provided with packets containing information about their families, including the ways in which their children have grown, the type of housing in which they have been living, and in some cases, the fact that their wives have sued for divorces.

Apple said if a returnee is in good physical condition and wants to do so, "he may be able to spend his first night here with his family."

The prisoners are to leave Vietnam for a processing center in the Philippines, then to Travis Air Force Base in California before being airlifted to Wright Patterson.

Chillicothe drug haul said legal

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Two men convicted of possessing 1,000 pounds of marijuana in campers near Chillicothe, Ohio have lost their appeal to suppress the evidence under the Fourth Amendment.

The 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Friday upheld Judge Joe Kinneary of the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Ohio, Eastern Division.

The appellate court said that customs agents had probable cause to believe that the two campers contained contraband. The judge had ruled that the search was unconstitutional.

Joseph Cusanelli and Dennis Stanley, who were arrested and sentenced to five years in prison, contended that the search of the campers at a roadblock near the airport in May, 1972 violated the Fourth Amendment.

During the hearing to suppress the evidence, the government said four customs agents followed a small airplane from Grand Bahama Island to New Smyrna Beach, Fla., where it landed, refueled and flew to Chillicothe.

Hours after the plane landed at Chillicothe, a large number of plastic bags was taken from the airplane and loaded into the campers.

There were no customs facilities at the airport so agents set up a roadblock outside the airport and searched the campers.

Agree to delay concourse razing

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The Southern Railway has agreed to postpone for two weeks, the scheduled Feb. 1 demolition of the concourse of the Cincinnati Union Terminal.

The agreement was announced jointly in Washington by the railroad and Cincinnati Mayor Theodore Berry following a negotiation session.

"We have had a good constructive meeting, and have agreed to continue joint engineering studies to determine the feasibility of preserving the concourse and installing a new piggyback yard," they said in a joint statement.

Celebration urged for 7 p.m. tonight

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Cincinnati Mayor Thomas Berry has called for church bells to ring and prayers offered at 7 p.m. in thanksgiving for the truce in Vietnam.

He also called for citizens to welcome home the veterans, and help assure them "are responsibly integrated into our community."

$50,000 donation made to college

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A Dayton, Ohio man has donated $50,000 to the University of Cincinnati College of Medicine in appreciation for the education received there by his son.

The donor, Eugene Joffe, said his son graduated from the medical school in 1971.

Members of Alpha Theta chapter, Epsilon Sigma Alpha Sorority, met in the home of Mrs. Paul Cox. A brief business meeting was held and members discussed the husband's party which will be held in February.

wed in Good Hope Church

Miss Lynda Gay Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Loren Conner Johnson, St. Rt. 41-S, and Pfc. Donald Lee Herman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Eugene Herman, of Bloomingburg, exchanged marriage vows at 4 p.m. Wednesday in Good Hope United Methodist Church.

The Rev. Earl Russell performed the double ring ceremony before two seven-branch candelabra decorated with pink and burgundy bows. The couple lighted a candle to symbolize the beginning of their marriage.

Miss Johnson, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal length A-line

Miss Briggs WCTU hostess

Miss Mabel Briggs extended hospitality to the Washington C. H., Woman's Christian Temperance Union at her home Friday afternoon.

The meeting was opened with devotions by Mrs. Ralph Hays with a reading, "A New Year" and appropriately the first lines in the Bible, "In the beginning God made the Heavens and the earth" and closed with prayer.

President Mrs. Cloyce Copley expressed thanks for peace. The usual reports were approved as read. Mrs. John Case read a letter from Mrs. Lucille Rafferty, state president, expressing greetings for the New Year.

The 100th anniversary of the WCTU will be held in Hillsboro on October 17-19. This will be the annual State convention and Hillsboro is known as the 'cradle of the WCTU' so it is quite fitting for the two observances to be combined in this Centennial year.

Mrs. Eldon Bethards read an article about X-rated movies. If there are no protests they will be shown in the evening on valuable TV time. All were asked to write letters of protest to Mr. Statins, CBS Broadcasting Co., 51 W. 52 St., New York, New York, 10010. Cheer cards were sent to several ill members.

Mrs. J. G. Jordan was program leader. She read an article about the thriving vineyards in California. It is estimated there were 283,500 alcoholics in Ohio in 1970. Ohio ranks 35th in the nation with 2.28 gallons per capita being consumed. It was noted of the billions of dollars of tax payers money being used for hospital and nursing care for the alcoholic, and the loss of manpower from the week end hangover is now running into billions of dollars.

Miss Briggs assisted by Mrs. Dean Torbett served a dessert course to the guests. Mrs. James McCoy was included as a guest.

The next meeting will be at the home of Miss Marian Christopher, on Feb. 23.

Bible Study to begin Tuesday

A Bible study on the Book of Romans will begin Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Madison Mills United Methodist Church. The text, "Doorway to a New Age" will be used during the six-week course.

The Rev. Frank Allen White, pastor of the church, will be the instructor. Everyone is welcome to attend these sessions which are sponsored by the United Methodist Women.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Vitamin C: Good for Colds

When the Vitamin C controversy was at its peak last year physicians, health authorities and scientists assumed a dogmatic position in favor of or against its use for the treatment of the common cold.

It was astonishing to find that "arm camps," using words as barbs, denigrated or defended the enthusiasm of Dr. Linus Pauling for the use of vitamin C for common colds.

It is true that Dr. Pauling has never attained the revered degree of M.D., or Medical Doctor.

How, then, does one outside the "fraternity" dare introduce his revolutionary thoughts about this, one of the greatest ills of man?

The fact is, his position of a Nobel Prize winner in chemistry allows him the well-acquired right to diffuse greater knowledge about Vitamin C.

After all, most of our great medical accomplishments result from the studies of chemistry.

Most of the drugs now in use are synthetic refinements of discoveries made in chemical laboratories by chemists, most of whom do not have a medical degree.

In one of my columns at the time of the heated controversy about Vitamin C, I suggested that time, trial and error would eventually tell us if there were any advantage in taking excessive doses of vitamin C in order to reduce the frequency, the severity, or the duration of the common cold.

With good scientific controls (with patients it was inevitable that the truth or the fallacy of Dr. Pauling's theory would be established).

Dr. T. W. Anderson, professor of epidemiology at the University of Toronto in Canada, has just completed an enormous study on the efficacy of Vitamin C as a protection against the common cold. Neither the patients who were tested nor the doctors who were treating them knew which patients were receiving Vitamin C.

Dr. Anderson and his colleagues were extremely skeptical of Dr. Pauling's claim when first they began the study. The results have almost completely wiped away their skepticism.

They believe that there still are some questions that are unanswered, but their results are sufficiently encouraging for them to continue their intensive survey.

Almost 1,000 people were studied, only half of whom were given Vitamin C, in doses of 1000 mg. daily. All were given similar-looking medication.

Those who were taking the Vitamin C had fewer colds and fewer days of disability than those who were not.

Dr. Pauling originally recommended doses as high as 4000 mg. of Vitamin C a day, taken at the onset of a cold, to reduce the severity of the infection. He also recommended a huge daily dose in order to prevent a cold.

Dr. Anderson's study is one of the best-controlled scientific ventures to support the claims of Dr. Pauling. Even more extensive study plans are already being blue-printed.

Since Vitamin C, or ascorbic acid, unlike some other vitamins, is completely safe in high doses to most people, those with frequent colds might give serious consideration to its use.

However, before embarking on such a regime your own doctor should be consulted.

The chances of making a mistake in a random deal are very substantial, and most players would be extremely happy to be able to get by two or three hands in a row flawlessly.

But what makes the game especially attractive and challenging is the fact that the overwhelming majority of mistakes made by most players can be avoided by careful play.

4 crashes listed; one driver cited

One driver was cited in four traffic mishaps investigated overnight by city police and sheriff's departments. No injuries and moderate property damage was reported.

Terry L. Stewart, 17, of Circleville, was charged with failure to yield right of way in a two-car mishap at the triangle intersection of Washington Avenue, Columbus Avenue and Court Street, at 11:08 p.m. Friday.

Officers said Stewart was westbound on Columbus Avenue and made a left turn at the intersection into the path of an eastbound car driven by Myron H. Cottrell, 19, Rt. 2, Leesburg. The two cars collided head-on.

Scottish Rite Masons hear Gen. Lanning

Fayette County Scottish Rite Masons met for their annual dinner Thursday evening at the Washington Country Club and heard a discussion of patriotism by Brig. Gen. Calvin H. Lanning, assistant adjutant general-Army, of the Ohio National Guard.

Approximately 140 members and guests were present, including five 33rd degree Masons from Columbus, led by Valley Secretary Ed Ott and Director of Fraternal Relations Ray Long. Special guests included Lt. Col. Donald Anderson, of Columbus, Capt. Gary Partlow, of Wilmington, and the Rev. Gerald Wheat, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church.

Local guests were Ralph Davidson, Norman Schiering, John Wagner, Steve and Roger Satchell, David Baughn, John Sheeley, Alfred Carr and Larry Walker.

Gen. Lanning's discussion centered on the point that citizens and participants in the way of life enjoyed in the United States are not doing a good enough job of selling that way of life, and that, as a result, many young people are being swayed by those opposed to the American system.

He emphasized the need to talk about what is good in America while admitting its faults and trying to improve overall conditions and inequities. He concluded his talk with an explanation of what the National Guard is doing to improve the American way of life and become a part of today's society.

Clyde Cramer, local director of fraternal relations, introduced Gen. Lanning. Committee members are Charles (Bud) Mustine, Virgil Lowe, Lawrence (Tek) Grim, David and Max Morrow.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The National Weather Service's summary of Ohio weather:

Rain spread northward over the state Friday night. It was pretty well limited to central and southern counties during the evening but increased in aerial coverage over northern counties after midnight. As the night approached its end rain continued to fall over central and eastern sections.

Heaviest rain Friday evening was in Cincinnati. It recorded 0.28 inches up to 1 a.m. EST while Columbus had 0.23 inches during the same period. Rain will gradually end over the central and eastern counties today.

Temperatures during the night showed a strong geographical gradient. By 6 a.m. EST Toledo has dropped to 38 degrees while Marietta holds at 47. Zanesville and Columbus are not much cooler at 46.

The weather map Saturday morning is characterized by weak pressure areas. A very weak low pressure area is moving northeast. Our rain during the night reflected its eastward progress. Cloudy skies and above normal temperatures will be with us the next 24 hours. Cold air is breaking out of the northern plains. Sunday will find it pushing through Ohio.

Cold temperatures are expected in Ohio Monday and Tuesday, followed by some moderation on Wednesday. There will be a chance of snow Monday and some flurries on Tuesday. Cincy bank seeks ruling on trust fund from 1884

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The Central Trust Bank of Cincinnati wants the Hamilton County Common Pleas Court to decide what to do with a $13,000 trust fund that dates back to the Cincinnati Courthouse riots of 1884.

Public spirited citizens raised $4,100 to help care for the mother of Capt. John J. Desmond who was killed leading the First Regiment of the Ohio National Guard against the riots.

The bloody riots broke out after the first of two men, accused of murdering a horse trader and throwing his body into the Mill Creek, was sentenced to life in prison.

Historians said the city rioted demanding the death penalty. The second defendant was later convicted and executed.

During the riots, 100 were killed and 300 were wounded and the old Hamilton County Courthouse was burned down destroying most of the country records.

Desmond, who was also an attorney, was shot down by a rioter as he led troops into the courthouse.

Captain Desmond's mother died in 1895. In 1901 a court ruled that the funds should be used to aid three militiamen wounded in the fighting.

They were Edward J. Meier, Charles W. Cook and Michael J.

Lift curbs on tobacco and drugs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Acting to define food under Phase 3 wage-price guidelines, the Cost of Living Council has exempted alcoholic beverages, tobacco and drugs from mandatory controls.

The council said Friday that any items "produced or manufactured for human ingestion, but not including alcoholic beverages, tobacco products or drugs," are subject to mandatory controls.

Mandatory controls mean a firm cannot raise prices without justifying them. Nor can it exceed a profit margin or percentage markup set by the council.

The food, construction and health industries remained under mandatory wage-price controls when Phase 3 was put into effect Jan. 11, while the remainder of the economy went under voluntary restraints.

Firms covered by mandatory controls, the council said further, are those deriving at least 20 per cent or $50 million of their annual revenues from the sale of food. Large restaurants, caterers and vending-machine operators are subject to the mandatory controls, the council said.

Products eaten by both humans and beasts will be exempt from mandatory controls until they "enter into a processing stage" where they are intended for strict human ingestion, the council said.

The new regulations don't apply to raw farm products until after the first sale, and wholesalers are still permitted to pass along any increases in those products when they sell such items.

The controls continue to set a ceiling on price increases based on a firm's profit margin before controls were instituted.

Officials said alcoholic beverages were exempted because they are not included in the federal food price index that is used to calculate the cost of living and "liquor prices have not been a problem in Phase 2."

Under the council's definition, any ice purchased to put in a drink will be subject to mandatory controls—if the ice company is big enough—and while the liquor won't be, the mixer will.

Corn, wheat and soybeans will be covered if they are to be made into breakfast cereal, cooking oil or other products for human consumption but not if they are sold as livestock feed.

Lottery winners take off;

don't want kin to know

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Newsmen expecting broad smiles and excited lottery winners were disappointed when three persons holding valuable tickets took the money and ran.

All three flatly refused to permit newspaper photographers to snap their pictures at a presentation here.

"You would think," commented Harry Kaplan, executive director of the Pennsylvania lottery bureau, "that anyone getting a nice check in return for a very small investment would be jumping for joy. But these people don't appear particularly joyful. It may be that they're apprehensive about how relatives and friends will react to their good fortune."

The three showed up at noon Friday to collect checks of between $10,000 and $15,000.

"If my picture appears in the paper, I've got a half-dozen relatives who will be around tomorrow morning trying to bleed me," said Mrs. Frankie Smith, of Philadelphia, a 76-year-old widow, who won $15,000 in the Lucky Seven Lottery Dec. 22.

Another $15,000 winner, from the Dec. 17 Lucky Seven, was Philadelphia policeman Robert E. Cooke, 34.

"My house was burglarized a month ago," Cooke said. "I might get ripped

High-cost financial help available to Ohio farmers

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's farmers appear to be in line for financial aid to help them out of their weather-caused problems. But it may not really mean a great deal. State Agriculture Director Eugene Abercrombie called it "a drop in the bucket."

The head of the Farmers Home Administration officer here, Ralph Stacey, said the FHA has about $2 million available for loans to farmers who are unable to get money elsewhere through its Operating Loan Program.

Stacy said the money, loaned at a rate of 5.87 per cent could be used to help farmers get started on next year's crops. The emergency loans to farmers, cut off last month by the federal government, would have cost the borrowers one per cent. Stacy said it appeared to him there wouldn't be any further emergency loans, at least until the end of the current fiscal year.

Dying war claims 3rd American

SAIGON (AP) — Communist forces stormed into the major city of Tay Ninh and its Cao Dai temple today and attacked smaller towns across South Vietnam in what U.S. officials said was a grab for land before the cease-fire. It has been widely presumed by allied officials that the Viet Cong would like to claim Tay Ninh City, a provincial capital 55 miles northwest of Saigon, as a political base.

They believe it is important to the Communists because the city is near Viet Cong and North Vietnamese military bases and supply depots along the Cambodian border.

The South Vietnamese military command said the Communist troops had been driven out of several hamlets around Tay Ninh. But they acknowledged enemy troops still held two edges of the city.

U.S. officials said the attacks might prove of some success to the Communists in giving them control in new areas before the cease-fire goes into effect at 8 a.m. Sunday — 7 p.m. EST today.

One U.S. soldier who watched a buddy die in a predawn rocket attack on Da Nang Air Base said: "The only irony of it is that a good friend of mine from the same hometown as I'm from was killed this morning. He was supposed to start initial out-processing this morning to leave. He just got killed."

He was the third American serviceman to die since the cease-fire was announced Wednesday. A Marine security guard was killed in a rocket attack on the Bien Hoa Air Base before dawn Friday, and an observer was killed later the same day when his

Press, public to be kept from returning POWs

TRAVIS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — Americans who have waited to see Vietnam prisoners of war return to home soil may not see much when it actually happens.

Military officials who have been preparing "Operation Homecoming" for months said Friday they plan to keep the public, newsmen and photographers at a distance from the freed war prisoners who will be brought here.

In route from Vietnam to one of 31 military hospitals near their homes, the POWs will stop at this sprawling air base 50 miles northeast of San Francisco for varying lengths of time. The first are expected within two weeks.

Newsmen were shown Friday how the POWs will be taken from the giant C141 medical evacuation jets that will bring them home from Communist captivity.

Bad weather in Midwest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Winter roared back into the mid-continent today, bringing with it strong winds and heavy snows, while rain soaked the East and West coasts.

Only the Gulf Coast and portions of the Southwest, including Texas, New Mexico and Arizona and stretching into California, Nevada and Idaho, had fair skies.

A combination of cold fronts and storm systems over the center of the nation brought back the cold air and snow. Up to 3 inches of snow was reported at Akron, Colo. and Sydney, Neb. and 2 inches blanketed the ground at Goodland, Kan.

Many of the same sections were warmed by record January mildness earlier this week.

Rain doused the Pacific Northwest and showers extended from the Ohio Valley to the Atlantic Coast.

Heavy fog socked in an area from southern Lake Superior to New England. Freezing drizzle also was hampering driving in the southern Lake Superior area.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 76 at Key West, Fla. to 1 at Butte, Mont.

Oleo heir kills self

WINGSTON, N.Y. (AP) — Three years after setting off a dollar fever with a promise to give away his fortune first-come, first-served — oleomargarine heir Michael James Brody Jr., 24, has shot himself to death.

His promise in 1970, when he was 21, lured hundreds of persons to a rented mansion in Scarsdale, N.Y., where Brody wrote thousands of dollars in checks to people he didn't know. The checks bounced.

Brody said the idea came to him while "tripped out on drugs."

Ceremony takes just 18 minutes

PARIS (AP) — Agreements on ending the fighting in Vietnam and calling for the withdrawal of all U.S. forces were signed today in two sessions in the ballroom of an old hotel near the Arc de Triomphe.

In the first session this morning, the United States, South Vietnam, North Vietnam and the Viet Cong signed the overall agreement that for the United States means the end of the longest war in its history and a conflict paid for in the lives of nearly 460 men and billions of dollars.

This signing took 18 minutes and ended with champagne toasts. But outside, demonstrators were waving Viet Cong and North Vietnamese flags and booed the Americans and the South Vietnamese.

In the second signing session, Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Foreign Minister Nguyen Du Trinh of North Vietnam signed a separate group of documents and this officially brought an end to the diplomatic efforts for peace in Vietnam that began in 1968.

The main agreement signed by all four parties calls for the end of the fighting in Vietnam at midnight Greenwich Mean Time—or 7 p.m. EST.

As the U.S. and South Vietnamese delegations left, the crowd across the street booed and jeered, then burst into the "International" as the Viet Cong foreign minister, Mrs. Binh, came into view.

The South Vietnamese delegation announced later that it had expressed "its deep surprise" to the French government for permitting the demonstration to take place near the scene of the signing.

About 300 French and Vietnamese, waving a forest of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong flags, stood behind police barriers opposite the entrance to the conference center.

Signed at the first ceremony were three protocols, or annexes, and the main agreement entitled: "Agreement on Ending the War and Restoring Peace in Vietnam."

The protocols cover the release of prisoners, the operation of the four-nation control commission of Canada, Indonesia, Poland and Hungary and the operation of the temporary Joint Military Commission to be set up by the four parties to the agreements.

The documents set aside for Rogers and Trinh were three protocols plus a fourth covering U.S. removal of American mines dropped in North Vietnamese waters.

The only difference in the documents in the morning and afternoon session is in the preamble and the designation of the signatories.

The agreement signed by all four parties refers only to "the parties participating in the Paris conference on Vietnam."

The U.S.-North Vietnamese documents formally designate the four parties by name, including the Republic of Vietnam, meaning South Vietnam, and the provisional revolutionary government, meaning the Viet Cong.

This complex procedure was a compromise avoiding any mutual recognition by the two rival South Vietnamese governments.

The signing ends for the United States a war that saw its first soldier killed in action in 1961. Since then 45,931 Americans have died in action and 303,605 have been wounded.

Violence in Ireland

LONDONDERRY, Northern Ireland (AP) — Three militiamen were wounded, none seriously, by a Soviet-made rocket fired at them early today in County Armagh, near the border with the Irish Republic, authorities reported.

The attack followed Friday's violence during which a British soldier was shot in the back.

Coffee Break ..

TO SIGNAL the beginning of the cease-fire in Vietnam, and, hopefully, the end of hostilities, many people will pause at 7 p.m. this evening and say "Thank God," but there will be no great outpouring of joy and jubilation as at the end of our other wars, most recently Korea . . .

A few local churches will ring their bells, and some will have brief services, but it will not be a city-wide celebration — only a prayerful hope . . .

National period of prayer proclaimed by President

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — Like countless Americans across the nation, President Nixon and his family will say prayers of thanksgiving today as the shooting ends in this country's longest war.

Nixon; his wife, Pat, and daughter Julie Nixon Eisenhower plan to attend a special church service at 7 p.m. EST at the Key Biscayne Presbyterian Church near the Florida White House, press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said.

Nixon flew to Florida from Washington on Friday shortly after he signed a proclamation designating that hour for prayer and thanksgiving. It coincides with the hour a cease-fire is to take place in Vietnam.

The President issued the proclamation after Congress requested one made.

In it, he said in part:

"A long and trying ordeal for America has ended. Our nation has achieved its goal for peace with honor in Vietnam."

"As a people with a deep and abiding faith, we know that no great work can be accomplished without the aid and inspiration of almighty God. No time can be more fitting for grateful prayer and meditation than the opening moment of the peace we have achieved with His help.

"Now, therefore, I ... do hereby designate 7 p.m. Eastern Standard Time ... as a national moment of prayer and thanksgiving and the 24-hour period beginning then as a national day of prayer and thanksgiving...."

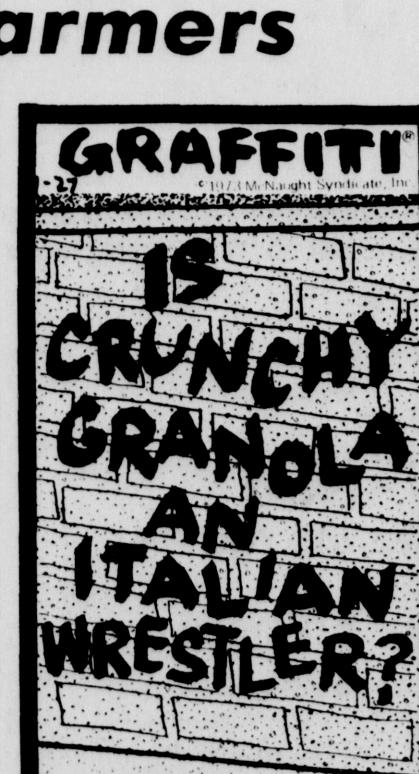

The Rev. John Huffman, who is pastor of the Key Biscayne church Nixon often attends and who has preached for Nixon at the White House, will lead the prayers for the First Family.

When the presidential party landed at nearby Homestead Air Force Base Friday afternoon, Nixon was greeted by a local high school band and several hundred well-wishers, including families of prisoners of war and soldiers missing in action.

Nixon, his wife and daughter shook hands with the crowd, kept behind a security fence, for 18 minutes before departing for their Key Biscayne compound by helicopter.

As he greeted the half dozen POW and MIA families, he told them: "You're the bravest people I know."

To one POW wife Nixon said, "Sorry we didn't make it by Christmas."

Performance of farmers variable

During the first three months of 1972, more than 400 progressive Ohio farmers analyzed their 1971 farm records through Ohio State University's year-end record analysis program, according to John Gruber, county Extension agent, agriculture, for Fayette County.

Taken as a group, the Ohio dairy farmers in the program had the highest incomes in 1971. The top 25 per cent of the dairy farms in the program had an average net farm income of $28,509. During this same time period, 25 per cent of the dairy farms at the lowest income levels had an average net farm income of $5,340.

Due to the low hog prices, farm income for swine producers was depressed in 1971. The top 25 per cent of the swine farms in the program had net farm income of 10,516, and a return of 4 per cent on their investment.

The 25 per cent of the swine farms with the lowest income levels actually lost $1,071 per farm in 1971.

Detailed results, plus results for beef and crop farms, are available in published form at the County Extension Office.

THE QUESTION. arises, "Why do some farmers make so much less than others?"

The difference between producer groups, such as between dairymen and swine producers, is largely dependent upon the supply and demand characteristics of the markets for their respective products. These market factors are largely beyond the control of the individual producer. However, this doesn't explain the wide range in farm incomes for farmers producing the same products.

There are many reasons why farmers producing the same products have widely varying incomes. One of the big differences is the farmer's ability to generate enough income to cover his overhead costs. A large portion of farm costs are highly fixed in nature; therefore, the farm manager must look primarily to the output side of his operation to increase his profits."

The results of the year-end record

analysis program point out three general areas where high income farmers excel.

FIRST, farmers with higher incomes tend to produce high value crops at high yield levels. This is true whether the farm is primarily a crop or livestock farm. A gross income for field crops of $100 per tillable acre is a minimum. Smaller farms may need to produce crops valued at $115 per acre, and more, in order to cover their higher costs.

Farmers with livestock have their animals producing at high production levels. Dairy farmers with large breed cows will be producing over 14.00 pounds of milk per cow per year. Similarly, swine producers will attempt to have all their sows farrowing two litters per year, with over 8 pigs per litter. The successful ones average 13-14 pigs or more per sow per year.

SECONDLY, farmers making the most money make more intensive use of the land, labor, and capital resources they have to work with. The high income farms have a higher gross income per farm, per hour of labor expended, per dollar invested, and per dollar of feed fed.

Third, they have sufficient size to fully utilize their own labor and equipment. High productivity per hour of labor expended is one of the key factors on high income farms.

IF YOU are a farmer, and you would like to take a look at your farm and see how it stacks up and how it might be improved, you can do it through this program, Gruber says. It is available at a nominal charge to all Ohio farmers.

There are four basic steps in the program:

(1) Obtain an input form from the county Extension office. (The best time to fill out the form is immediately after completing 1972 income taxes).

(2) Fill out the input form. Those who have trouble with it, may call on Gruber, who will be glad to assist in completing the form.

The results of the year-end record

(3) Return the form to the county Extension office.

Records will be analyzed and returned approximately two weeks from the time the farmer submits the correct input form.

At this time, a meeting can be arranged with Jim Polson, the Area Extension agent, farm management, so that he and Gruber can go over the results with the farmer on an individual basis, and help spot strengths and weaknesses in the business. They will also show how the individual compares with similar Ohio farmers.

All information on individual farms is kept strictly confidential. However, farms will be divided into groups and results similar to those given above published.

Anyone interested in this program may contact the Fayette County Extension office for more details. The deadline for submitting records for analysis is March 15.

Revision of beef grading opposed by breeds council

"American consumers will be short changed if a proposed revision of the USDA beef grading standards is enacted," Lloyd D. Miller, new president of the U. S. Beef Breeds Council, said after a recent meeting of the group.

Speaking for the Council's members, which represents the nine major beef breed registry associations with more than 128,000 members nationally, Miller said the proposal advanced by three meat packing associations would lower the minimum quality standards in each of the three most used and trusted USDA grades. The changes, now under consideration by the USDA, at the request of the three packer groups, would lower the marbling requirements for USDA Good, Choice and Prime grades for all carcasses from cattle over a year of age.

At their recent annual meeting in Dallas, Texas, members of the U. S. Beef Breeds Council voted unanimously to oppose any grading changes which, it contended would "short change" the consumers, and cause them to lose confidence in the quality of American beef, particularly beef graded USDA Choice.

After hearing an explanation of proposed grade changes by John Pierce, director of the USDA's Livestock Division, the Council members concluded that there is not enough evidence to justify any grade changes at this time. The members also concluded that further lowering of marbling requirements could turn the USDA beef grading program into virtually a one-grade service.

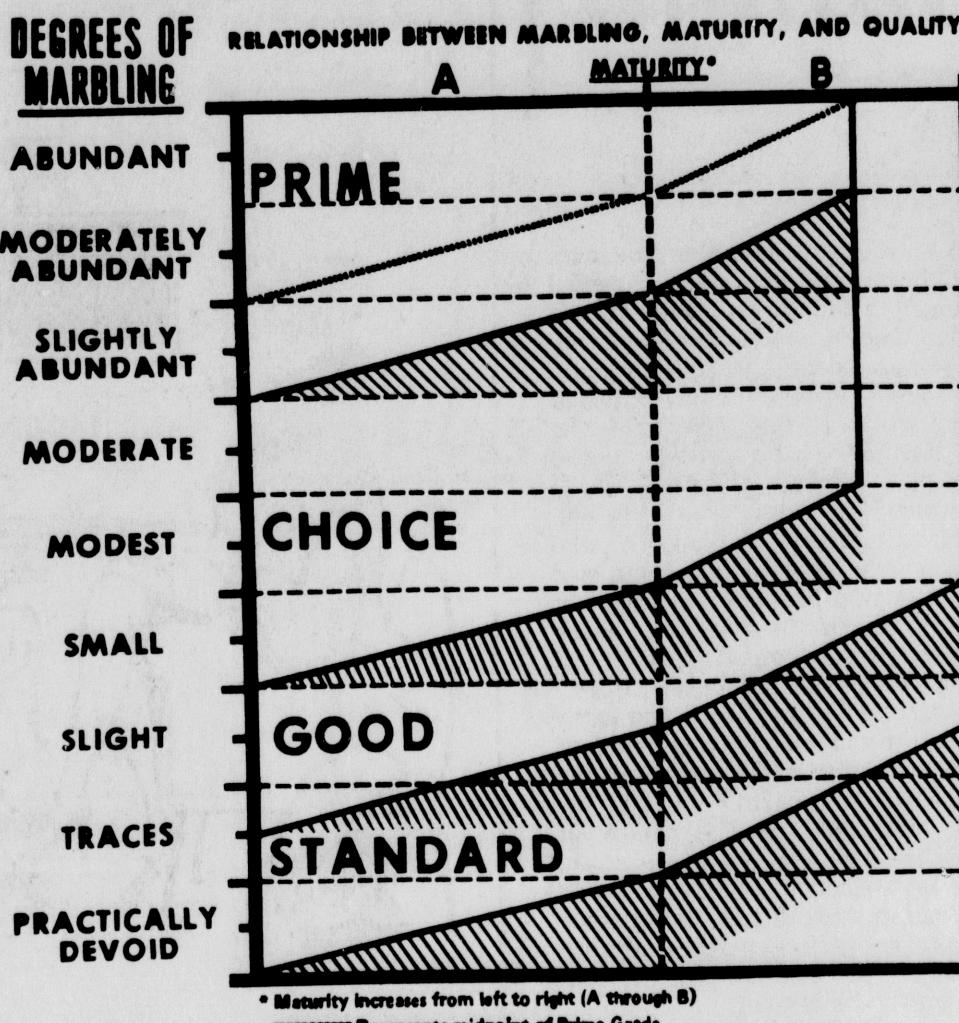

The council said the change would allow the top one-thirds of all carcasses that currently are graded USDA Good, to qualify for a USDA Choice stamp. By the same token the top one-third or more of all carcasses graded USDA Standard today would be eligible to be rolled USDA Good. During the first 19 weeks of the current USDA fiscal year some 81 per cent of all cattle graded received the USDA Choice label while only 13 per cent graded USDA Good and 5 per cent Prime. By including more than one-third of the current Good grade carcasses in the USDA Choice grade the proposed grading change would make at least 86 per cent of all graded beef USDA Choice. For all practical purposes this would mean a one-grade system, as exists in lamb grading today, the council pointed out.

Under the present USDA grading standards a carcass with physiological age of nine months requires at least a "small-minus" amount of marbling to qualify for USDA Choice. A carcass of about 16 months of age must have marbling that at least falls into the middle of the "small" classification and cattle with a physiological age of around 24 months of age needs nearly a "modest" amount of marbling to be rolled USDA Choice. The change proposed by the meat packers and supported by some cattle feeding groups requires that all carcasses in the "A" maturity classification (about 9 months to 29 months of age) would need only "small-minus" marbling to qualify for Choice, the amount that nine month old animals are required to have today. (See enclosed graph).

Persons or organizations who have an opinion on proposed grading changes were advised to express their opinion in writing to John Pierce, director, Livestock Division, USDA, Washington, D. C.

Member organizations of the U. S. Beef Breeds Council are: American Angus Association, American Brahman Breeders Association, American Hereford Association, American International Charolais Association, American Polled Hereford Association, American Shorthorn Association, International Brangus Breeders Association, Red Angus Association of America, and Santa Gertrudis Breeders International.

HOW MUCH THE MARBLING requirements would be lowered for USDA graded beef under a proposal advanced by the three large meat packer organizations is shown in the shaded areas of this graph supplied by the United States Department of Agriculture. The dark lines are the current dividing lines between the various grades. For example, the amount of marbling for a 9-month-old animal to get into the Choice grade is at the bottom of the "Small" amount. At the division between "A" and "B" maturity, (dotted line running vertically in center of graph) which represents about 29 months of age, a carcass must have "modest" marbling. A carcass of about 16 to 18 months of age now must exhibit marbling in the middle of the "Small" range to qualify for the USDA Choice grade. If the proposed grading change is enacted any animal in the "A" maturity range (from 9 to 29 months of age) would need only "small minus" marbling to grade USDA choice, about half a degree less than most carcasses must have today.

Adjustment in milk price set Feb. 1

The Central Ohio Co-operative Milk Producers, Inc. and other Great Lakes Southern Milk marketing areas have announced an adjustment in the price, effective Feb. 1.

Donald E. Zehr, general manager of the Central Ohio Co-operative Milk Marketing Agency, explained that the increase will be 30¢ per hundred pounds of milk used for bottling. The increase in raw milk price is due to the size and suddenness of the increase in the cost of feed, labor, and services associated with the production of milk at the farm.

The adverse weather plus added expenses have made it necessary for farmers to have additional income to meet these costs, it is explained.

Nixon campaigner gets USDA post

Clayton Yeutter, a Nebraska farmer-rancher with a degree in law and a doctorate in agricultural economics, will be an assistant secretary of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, the White House announced.

Yeutter was named as assistant secretary of marketing and consumer services. He had formerly served as administrator of the Department's Consumer and Marketing Service before joining the Committee to Re-elect the President a year ago. There, as Midwest Regional Director, he headed President Nixon's re-election campaign in seven midwestern states and also served as the Committee's National Director for Agriculture.

Lyndon Baines Johnson

The shockingly sudden death of President Lyndon Baines Johnson was most untimely, and not in any mere chronological sense. It was untimely because of what this extraordinary man might yet have contributed to American life.

Unlike some other former presidents who have lived to an advanced age (in this century Hoover, Eisenhower and Truman come notably to mind), Johnson had not yet reached his 65th birthday. Reticent in marked degree since his departure from the White House, embittered by what he regarded as widespread misunderstanding of his actions and motives while president, he had reportedly gained a new serenity in recent months. One may reasonably speculate that in years to come he might from time to time have offered wise counsel drawn from his long experience in the legislative and executive branches of the government.

Lyndon Johnson's passing so soon after President Harry S. Truman was laid to rest lends special resonance to any summation of Johnson's performance in the White House. It had just been widely noted that Truman scored his greatest successes in the management of foreign affairs after World War II, but was to a large extent thwarted in his domestic program. This was almost reversed in Johnson's case: he was able to push through remarkable domestic advances, particularly, but was brought down at last by popular opposition to his conduct of the war in Vietnam.

One of President Johnson's greatest triumphs was the enactment of the Voting Rights Act he had proposed. Some of the words he uttered in a speech before Congress urging passage of such legislation serve as well as anything to express his compassionate, humanely oriented presidential philosophy.

Noting on that occasion that ours is "the richest and most powerful country which ever occupied this globe," he disavowed any wish "to be the president who built empires, or sought grandeur, or extended dominion." Rather, he said, he wanted to be the president who "educated young children to the wonders of their world," who "helped to feed the hungry," who "helped the poor to find their own way and who protected the right of every citizen to vote in every election," who "helped to end hatred among the people of all races and all regions and all parties." And lastly he said he wanted to be the president "who helped to end war among the brothers of the earth."

It was the great tragedy of Johnson's years in the White House that he so conspicuously failed in this culminating desire. Yet in other areas of concern set before Congress in that address he was as conspicuously successful.

A WORD EDGEWISE . . . by John P. Roche

The European Security Conference

For some years the Soviets have been pressing for a European Security Conference. In the early stages the project was stalled because Moscow thought the United States did not qualify as "European," and our Western European allies did not feel like going into the bear pit without their American ally. That was smoothed over, and now representatives of all European and NATO powers have been meeting in Helsinki to work out an agenda. Once the agenda is agreed upon, the conference itself will be convened.

On the surface the Soviets have been quite mollifying. For example, they have agreed with the United States that military issues be reserved for separate treatment — at another conference on Mutual and Balanced Force Reductions scheduled for Vienna. Since military relationships would appear to be the core of any European Security pact, one wonders what there is left to discuss at Helsinki.

IN FACT this European Security Conference could be a spectacular ideological trap and one hopes that the American and allied delegates are on the alert. This is said with some empirical misgivings: at the recent UNESCO Conference for American delegates on the resolutions committee of the subcommittee on communications voted FOR a Soviet sponsored resolution calling for censorship. When the proposal hit the floor of the full subcommittee we were in the embarrassing position of repudiating our own prior stance. In short, though we came out in the right place, we looked like bumbling amateurs.

Thus the first question to be asked is: What do the Soviets and their allies want? Romania has muddied up the waters a bit by suggesting that everybody agree not to use force against everybody else — a thinly disguised way of denouncing the Brezhnev Doctrine, which stated that armed intervention in Czechoslovakia (and by implication any other "socialist" state) was legitimate to protect the people from "imperialism." However, that will probably die by the wayside; it has all the earmarks of a bargaining chip which the Romanians will sacrifice for, say, a new steel mill.

What we can anticipate is a Soviet effort to legitimize the status quo in Europe. If we take a close look at the status quo in Europe, we find that this means the maintenance of Communist dictatorships on one hand, and the retention of the Community right to exercise power on our side of the hill. In other words, what is theirs is theirs — what is ours is up for grabs.

This is hardly a symmetrical arrangement. Symmetry would require that in exchange for the validation of Communist dictatorship, the Western powers obtain the right to suppress the Communists, and other opponents. In short, Franco's Spain or the Greek junta would provide the models for France and Italy.

OBVIOUSLY no democrat would suggest that we go to the Security Conference in search of such an ideological bargain. What then, assuming we do eventually reach the conference stage, should be our opening bid? The London Economist suggested some time ago that, for openers, we should demand full freedom of movement between East and West. This is an excellent proposal and our delegates should fight day and night to get it on the agenda.

Furthermore, we could do a lot worse than to introduce the Romanian proposal on our own initiative. (After all, we do not claim the right to intervene in, say, France to forestall a Communist electoral victory.) And there are undoubtedly other measures we could propose. But what is crucial is that we realize we are confronted by experts in political warfare who plan to squeeze every propaganda advantage to their maximum advantage. Please, Mr. President, send in the first team.

Calling all cars - but with what?

MARTINSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — The Martinsville police and the Morgan County Sheriff's Department found their police radios weren't much good in relaying the information on a recent burglary.

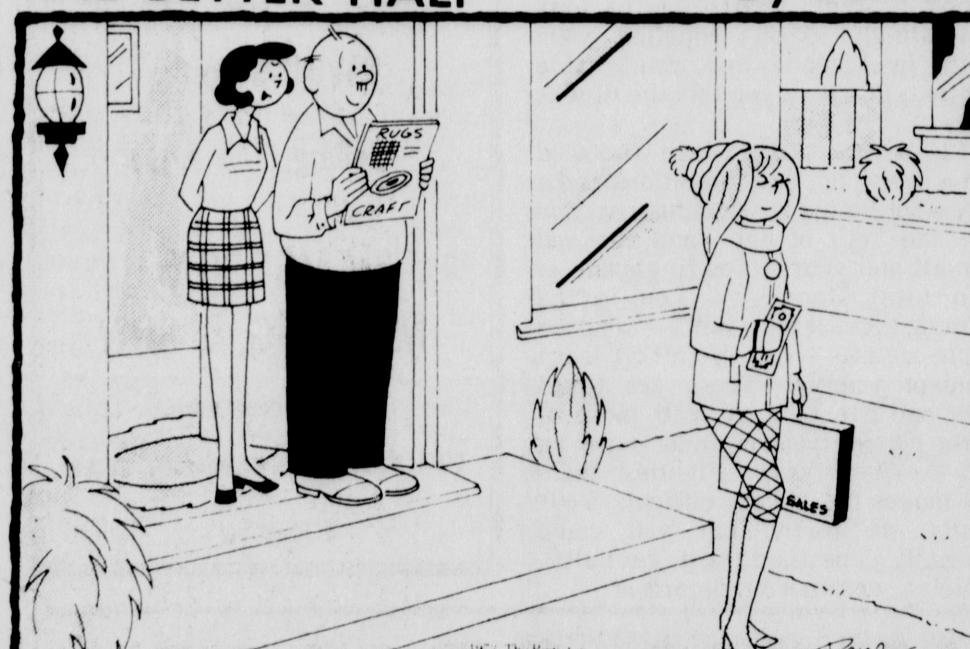

Someone stole their transmitter from a radio building in the city park. It was valued at more than $2,000 and weighed more than 150 pounds.

Officers borrowed a transmitter from nearby Greene County to get back on the air.

Ship hit by a whale

DURBAN, South Africa (AP) — The 608-ton Durban-based whaler Edwin Cook was almost sunk by one of its own harpoons. The vessel was holed when a harpoon protruding from a sperm whale it had shot ripped through the hull when a wave pushed the dead mammal against the ship.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Have problems sent to Dear Abby changed?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR READERS: I am frequently asked, "Has your mail changed much over the years since you've become Dear Abby?"

Yes. And one the greatest changes is the increasing number of letters I receive asking, "Shall I put my elderly parents in a nursing home?"

Recently, I read an impressive editorial in a medical bulletin concerning that problem. It was written by Dr. Graham Gilmer, Jr., an Orange Cal., physician. With his permission (and my minor editing,) I want to share it with you.

(From the diary of a woman we shall call Jane)

JULY 5, 1972
DEAR DIARY: Today, my 80-year-old father, Henry, came to live with us. Not that it's such a big deal, it's only that I should have known it wouldn't work out. When Mother died suddenly two years ago, Dad insisted that he could live alone in the home he and mother had built for their retirement. He seemed to be managing nicely until one day I found him sick in bed with the flu, alone with nothing to eat.

My husband agreed that we should build an apartment for Dad over our garage, adjoining our house. That way we could look after Dad and he would have a little place of his own.

DEAR DIARY: I don't know how much of this I can take! Dad comes over here at least 40 times a day asking me what day it is, and when is Mother coming home? Today he put his arm around me and called me "Mildred," thinking I was my own mother.

He babbles constantly and sometimes he makes no sense at all. He wets his pants and even messes in his bed and his trousers. What a chore! Why didn't I put him in a nursing home? It would have made life so much easier for us. Meanwhile, my brothers and sisters keep telling me what a "saint" I am, but they don't offer to take him off my hands. I have my own life to live and Dad is 80. Dear God, help me!

JULY 24, 1972
DEAR DIARY: I am so ashamed, I can hardly write this. Today I unpacked a trunk Dad stored in my attic after Mother died. Among the things Mother had saved was a packet of letters Dad had written to her over 50 years ago when Mother left Daddy and me to return to her hometown to help myself.

Someday, he may yet best fit into some nursing home, and when (if) that day comes, I will consider his own best interest. Until then, his letters to Mother will haunt my innermost soul.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Today is Saturday, Jan. 27, the 27th day of 1973. There are 338 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1880, Thomas A. Edison received a patent for his electric incandescent light.

On this date:

In 1756, composer Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart was born in Salzburg, Austria.

In 1808, the National Geographic Society was founded in Washington, D.C.

In 1943, U.S. bombers staged the first all-American air raid against Germany in World War II, striking Wilhelmshaven.

In 1944, the Russian city of Leningrad officially celebrated liberation from the Nazis.

In 1964, France recognized Communist China.

In 1967, U.S. astronauts Virgil Grissom, Edward White and Roger Chaffee died in a flash fire in their space capsule at Cape Kennedy.

Ten years ago: Washington said Britain would have to share in the development costs of any advanced Polaris missiles it might buy from the U.S.

Five years ago: In South Vietnam, 3,500 American air cavalrymen were rushed in to help back up Marines threatened by an enemy offensive at Khe Sahn.

One year ago: Maurice H. Stans resigned as secretary of Commerce to become the chief fund-raiser for the Nixon reelection campaign.

Today's birthdays: Band leader Skitch Henderson is 55 years old. Vice Adm. Hyman G. Rickover is 73.

Thought for today: Fame is the perfume of heroic deeds—Socrates, Greek philosopher about 470 to 399 B.C.

When the giants crash

News that the crash of a chartered jetliner at Kano, Nigeria, apparently took 180 lives was disquieting enough in itself. If that figure turns out to be correct the accident sets a new record for loss of life in aircraft accidents.

Even more disquieting was this summation in an Associated Press account of the tragedy at Kano airport: "The crash here was the 11th in little over a year in which 100 or more persons were killed in various parts of the world." That accentuates the rising toll being taken as larger and larger aircraft operate on commercial scheduled or chartered flights.

The arithmetic of this phenomenon is simple: the bigger the plane, the greater the potential number of victims in a crash. Some operational aircraft now have places for more than 300 passengers (with capacity for more if need be), and others even larger are anticipated. Those responsible for airlines safety will no doubt not welcome further challenges to do everything possible to assure safe operation of such air giants. Such challenges must continue to be issued, all the same. Air traffic control systems, not only abroad but here at home, still fall short of what they might be.

Among Latin American republics, only Brazil and Argentina are larger than Mexico.

WPAFB set to receive returnees

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Ward 1 North at the Wright Patterson Air Force Base hospital near here will be the receiving center for returning prisoners of war from a surrounding eight-state area.

Most of the returnees will be members of the Air Force.

The ward has been set up to accommodate 38 men in single rooms with desks, chairs and television sets.

The men are to receive needed medical treatment and will be allowed to catch up on what has been going on in the outside world while they were held prisoners.

Air Force spokesmen said the families of the prisoners will be brought to the base at government expense if they desire and that reunions will take place in privacy shortly after the men arrive.

Free housing is being set aside on the base for the families should they choose to remain.

Lt. Col. Nick Apple said there is a possibility a returnee may not wish to meet with his family. "It's up to him," Apple said. The men will be provided with packets containing information about their families, including the ways in which their children have grown, the type of housing in which they have been living, and in some cases, the fact that their wives have sued for divorces.

Apple said if a returnee is in good physical condition and wants to do so, "he may be able to spend his first night here with his family."

The prisoners are to leave Vietnam for a processing center in the Philippines, then to Travis Air Force Base in California before being airlifted to Wright Patterson.

Chillicothe drug haul said legal

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Two men convicted of possessing 1,000 pounds of marijuana in campers near Chillicothe, Ohio have lost their appeal to suppress the evidence under the Fourth Amendment.

The 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Friday upheld Judge Joe Kinneary of the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Ohio, Eastern Division.

The appellate court said that "customs agents had probable cause to believe that the two campers contained contraband." The judge had ruled that the search was unconstitutional.

Joseph Cusanello and Dennis Stanley, who were arrested and sentenced to five years in prison, contended that the search of the campers at a roadblock near the airport in May, 1972 violated the Fourth Amendment.

During the hearing to suppress the evidence, the government said four customs agents followed a small airplane from Grand Bahama Island to New Smyrna Beach, Fla., where it landed, refueled and flew to Chillicothe.

Hours after the plane landed at Chillicothe, a large number of plastic bags was taken from the airplane and loaded into the campers.

There were no customs facilities at the airport so agents set up a roadblock outside the airport and searched the campers.

Agree to delay concourse razing

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The Southern Railway has agreed to postpone for two weeks, the scheduled Feb. 1 demolition of the concourse of the Cincinnati Union Terminal.

The agreement was announced jointly in Washington by the railroad and Cincinnati Mayor Theodore Berry following a negotiation session.

"We have had a good constructive meeting, and have agreed to continue joint engineering studies to determine the feasibility of preserving the concourse and installing a new piggyback yard," they said in a joint statement.

Celebration urged for 7 p.m. tonight

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Cincinnati Mayor Thomas Berry has called for church bells to ring and prayers offered at 7 p.m. in thanksgiving for the truce in Vietnam.

He also called for citizens to welcome home the veterans, and help assure they "are responsibly integrated into our community."

$50,000 donation made to college

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A Dayton, Ohio man has donated $50,000 to the University of Cincinnati College of Medicine in appreciation for the education received there by his son.

The donor, Eugene Joffe, said his son graduated from the medical school in 1971.

MRS. DONALD L. HERMAN

Miss Johnson, Pfc. Herman

wed in Good Hope Church

Miss Lynda Gay Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Loren Conner Johnson, St. Rt. 41-S, and Pfc. Donald Lee Herman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Eugene Herman, of Bloomingburg, exchanged marriage vows at 4 p.m. Wednesday in Good Hope United Methodist Church.

The Rev. Earl Russell performed the double ring ceremony before two seven-branch candelabra decorated with pink and burgundy bows. The couple lighted a candle to symbolize the beginning of their marriage.

Miss Johnson, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal length A-line

gown with empire waist, long lace sleeves with ruffled edges, and scalloped lace at the neckline. The lace redingote had scalloped lace down the front and hemline. Her chapel length mantilla had twin panels of lace and she carried a cascade of Georgian orchids and pink sweetheart roses. For something borrowed, she wore an engagement ring that belonged to her great-great-grandmother, Mrs. Verella Branen Johnson, who was married in 1881. The ring was loaned to the bride by her great-aunt, Mrs. John (Hazel Johnson) Weade.

Mrs. Larry Gilmore, of Columbus, was matron of honor. She wore a formal length gown of burgundy velvet, with scoop neckline and long sleeves which ended in points over the hands. The back of the skirt was gathered and ended in a train effect. She carried a colonial bouquet with pink streamers.

Mr. Gilmore served as best man.

Mrs. Johnson chose for her daughter's wedding an aqua and white knit dress with long sleeves. The bridegroom's mother wore a pink lace jacket and dress ensemble. Both mothers wore corsages of white cymbidium orchids.

Hostesses for the reception held in the social room of the church were Mrs. Jack White, Mrs. Drexel Hynes and Mrs. Howard McDonald.

The bride's table featured a three-tiered wedding cake, encircled with pink and burgundy flowers and greenery. The cake was baked by Mrs. Elsie Blades, a friend of the bride.

After spending a few days in Ohio, the newlyweds will return to Cherry Point, N.C. where Pfc. Herman is stationed with the United States Marine Corps.

The new Mrs. Herman is a 1971 graduate of Miami Trace High School and attended the University of Dayton. Her husband is also a 1971 MTHS graduate.

President Mrs. Cloyce Copley expressed thanks for peace. The usual reports were approved as read. Mrs. John Case read a letter from Mrs. Lucille Rafferty, state president, expressing greetings for the New Year. The 100th anniversary of the WCTU will be held in Hillsboro on October 17-19. This will be the annual State convention and Hillsboro is known as the 'cradle of the WCTU,' so it is quite fitting for the two observances to be combined in this Centennial year.

Mrs. Eldon Bethards read an article about X-rated movies. If there are no protests they will be shown in the evening on valuable TV time. All were asked to write letters of protest to Mr. Statin, CBS Broadcasting Co., 51 W. 52 St., New York, New York, 10010. Cheer cards were sent to several ill members.

Mrs. J. G. Jordan was program leader. She read an article about the thriving vineyards in California. It is estimated there were 283,500 alcoholics in Ohio in 1970. Ohio ranks 35th in the nation with 2.28 gallons per capita being consumed. It was noted of the billions of dollars of tax payers' money being used for hospital and nursing care for the alcoholic, and the loss of manpower from the week end hangover is now running into billions of dollars.

Miss Briggs assisted by Mrs. Dean Torbett served a dessert course to the guests. Mrs. James McCoy was included as a guest.

The next meeting will be at the home of Miss Marian Christopher, on Feb. 23.

Bible Study

to begin Tuesday

A Bible study on the Book of Romans will begin Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Madison Mills United Methodist Church. The text, "Doorway to a New Age" will be used during the six-week course.

The Rev. Frank Allen White, pastor of the church, will be the instructor. Everyone is welcome to attend these sessions which are sponsored by the United Methodist Women.

Totals (25-17-67).

But, Wilmington scored quickly and stalled. The Blue Lions, forced to foul in order to gain possession, lost Bath and pivotman Jeff Wallace with the maximum of personals and

Wilmington hit 11 of 13 free throws in the stretch to post the win.

Wilmington also found a hot hand from the floor hitting 25 of 51 shots for a spiffy 49 per cent mark while

Washington C.H. netted 25 of 62 for a 40.3 per cent average.

Turnovers, another of Washington

C.H.'s bugaboos this year, were nearly even. Wilmington was guilty of 17 mistakes while the Lions turned the ball over 15 times.

After a jumper by Donahue,

Wilmington raced to a 6-2 lead with 5:33 left in the opening period, but the Lions rebounded to knot the score three more times before the Hurricane notched a 17-13 first quarter lead.

RAIZIK SCORED two quick buckets in the opening moments of the second quarter to pace Wilmington to a 21-13 lead with 5:59 to play. Wilmington leaped to a 32-25 lead three minutes later, but the Lions netted eight straight points, six from Donahue, to nab a 33-32 lead at intermission.

The third quarter saw the bull-strong

Wilson collect three personal fouls in only 58 seconds as Washington C.H.'s collapsing defense applied the pressure. But an alert Wilmington defense limited the Lions to a mere nine points and the Lions faced a 42-42 deficit heading into the fourth quarter.

Junior Kenny Knisley canned two straight field goals to show the Lions to their comeback spurt and behind some crucial free throw shooting from Bath,

Mike Domenico and Witherspoon, the Lions reduced the deficit to 62-61 with 14 and 12 points, respectively.

It was the sticky defense of Witherspoon which shackled the smooth-shooting Raizik to only 12 points while Bath was instrumental in the Lions' late spurt before he fouled out.

Wilmington, now bunched in a second-place tie with Miami Trace, zipped to a 17-13 first period advantage, but the Lions soared back to capture a slender one-point halftime edge. The

Clinton Countians outscored the Lions

20-9 in the third frame to grab a comfortable 10-point lead heading into the fourth period, but the Lions fought like the dickens to chop Wilmington's lead to one point before head coach

Buddy Bell's cagers scored 11 points from the free throw line in a little over a minute and half to seal their seventh win in 12 starts.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Vitamin C: Good for Colds

When the Vitamin C controversy was at its peak last year physicians, health authorities and scientists assumed a dogmatic position in favor of or against its use for the treatment of the common cold.

It was astonishing to find that "arm camps," using words as barbs, denigrated or defended the enthusiasm of Dr. Linus Pauling for the use of vitamin C for common colds.

It is true that Dr. Pauling has never attained the revered degree of M.D., or Medical Doctor.

How, then, does one outside the "fraternity" dare introduce his revolutionary thoughts about this, one of the greatest ills of man?

The fact is, his position of a Nobel Prize winner in chemistry allows him the well-acquired right to diffuse greater knowledge about Vitamin C.

After all, most of our great medical accomplishments result from the studies of chemistry.

Most of the drugs now in use are synthetic refinements of discoveries made in chemical laboratories by chemists, most of whom do not have a medical degree.

In one of my columns at the time of the heated controversy about Vitamin C, I suggested that time, trial and error would eventually tell us if there were any advantage in taking excessive doses of vitamin C in order to reduce the frequency, the severity, or the duration of the common cold.

With good scientific controls with patients it was inevitable that the truth or the fallacy of Dr. Pauling's theory would be established.

Dr. T. W. Anderson, professor of epidemiology at the University of Toronto in Canada, has just completed an enormous study on the efficacy of Vitamin C as a protection against the common cold. Neither the patients who were tested nor the doctors who were treating them knew which patients were receiving Vitamin C.

Dr. Anderson and his colleagues were extremely skeptical of Dr. Pauling's claim when first they began the study. The results have almost completely wiped away their skepticism.

They believe that there still are some questions that are unanswered, but their results are sufficiently encouraging for them to continue their intensive survey.

Almost 1,000 people were studied, only half of whom were given Vitamin C, in doses of 1000 mg. daily. All were given similar-looking medication.

Those who were taking the Vitamin C had fewer colds and fewer days of disability than those who were not.

Dr. Pauling originally recommended doses as high as 4000 mg. of Vitamin C a day, taken at the onset of a cold, to reduce the severity of the infection. He also recommended a huge daily dose in order to prevent a cold.

Dr. Anderson's study is one of the best-controlled scientific ventures to support the claims of Dr. Pauling. Even more extensive study plans are already being blue-printed.

Since Vitamin C, or ascorbic acid, unlike some other vitamins, is completely safe in high doses to most people, those with frequent colds might give serious consideration to its use.

However, before embarking on such a regime your own doctor should be consulted.

When you consider that there are 635,013,559,600 different 13-card hands it is possible to be dealt, it becomes clear that no one in the wide, wide world is expected to bid or play them all perfectly.

The chances of making a mistake in a random deal are very substantial, and most players would be extremely happy to be able to get by two or three hands in a row flawlessly.

But what makes the game especially attractive and challenging is the fact that the overwhelming majority of mistakes made by most players can be avoided by careful play.

Consider this deal where South failed to perform flawlessly. He won the Special guests included Lt. Col. Donald Anderson, of Columbus, Capt. Gary Partlow, of Wilmington, and the Rev. Gerald Wheat, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church.

Local guests were Ralph Davidson, Norman Schiering, John Wagner, Steve and Roger Satchell, David Baughn, John Sheeley, Alfred Carr and Larry Walker.

Gen. Lanning's discussion centered on the point that citizens and participants in the way of life enjoyed in the United States are not doing a good enough job of selling that way of life, and that, as a result, many young people are being swayed by those opposed to the American system.

He emphasized the need to talk about what is good in America while admitting its faults and trying to improve over-all conditions and inequities. He concluded his talk with an explanation of what the National Guard is doing to improve the American way of life and become a part of today's society.

Clyde Cramer, local director of fraternal relations, introduced Gen. Lanning. Committee members are Charles (Bud) Mustine, Virgil Lowe, Lawrence (Tek) Grim, David and Max Morrow.

KIRKPATRICK FUNERAL HOME

Dear friends,

Your funeral director keeps an accurate record of floral tributes received at the funeral home so that notes of gratitude can be sent. If the flowers are to be shared later with some hospital or church, the funeral director will see to it. If the family wishes, he will proffer the clergyman's honorarium and that of musicians and include them in current expenses.

Respectfully,

Richard Kirkpatrick

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The National Weather Service's summary of Ohio weather:

Rain spread northward over the state Friday night. It was pretty well limited to central and southern counties during the evening but increased in aerial coverage over northern counties after midnight. As the night approached its end rain continued to fall over central and eastern sections.

Heaviest rain Friday evening was in Cincinnati. It recorded 0.28 inches up to 1 a.m. EST while Columbus had 0.23 inches during the same period. Rain will gradually end over the central and eastern counties today.

Temperatures during the night showed a strong geographical gradient. By 6 a.m. EST Toledo has dropped to 38 degrees while Marietta holds at 47. Zanesville and Columbus are not much cooler at 46.

The weather map Saturday morning is characterized by weak pressure areas. A very weak low pressure area is moving northeast. Our rain during the night reflected its eastward progress. Cloudy skies and above normal temperatures will be with us the next 24 hours. Cold air is breaking out of the northern plains. Sunday will find it pushing through Ohio.

Cold temperatures are expected in Ohio Monday and Tuesday, followed by some moderation on Wednesday. There will be a chance of snow Monday and some flurries on Tuesday. Monday's highs will be in the mid to upper 20s, rising to the mid 30s or low 40s by Wednesday. Lows will be in the teens Monday morning, moderating to the upper teens and low 20s by Wednesday.

Cincy bank seeks ruling on trust fund from 1884

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The Central Trust Bank of Cincinnati wants the Hamilton County Common Pleas Court to decide what to do with a $13,000 trust fund that dates back to the Cincinnati Courthouse riots of 1884.

Public spirited citizens raised $4,100 to help care for the mother of Capt.

John J. Desmond who was killed leading the First Regiment of the Ohio

National Guard against the riots.

The bloody riots broke out after the first of two men, accused of murdering a horse trader and throwing his body into the Mill Creek, was sentenced to life in prison.

Historians said the city rioted demanding the death penalty. The second defendant was later convicted and executed.

During the riots, 100 were killed and 300 were wounded and the old Hamilton

County Courthouse was burned down destroying most of the country records.

Desmond, who was also an attorney, was shot down by a rioter as he led troops into the courthouse.

Captain Desmond's mother died in 1895. In 1901 a court ruled that the funds should be used to aid three militiamen wounded in the fighting.

They were Edward J. Miephert,

Charles W. Cook and Michael J.
